

Office window privacy concerns

The easiest and least expensive option to address privacy concerns in an office environment is to apply a translucent film on the full glass surface or up to the line of sight. This allows in light without people being able to see in or out. Stripes or other simple patterns with clear spaces can be used to create a semi-private effect. How much privacy is desired dictates the amount of clear space in your design.